Headline:
Turning colder and unsettled over the next few days.

This Evening and Tonight:
Cloud and patchy rain in the south will soon clear, leaving clear spells with frost likely in places. Cloud increasing later, with showers on coasts. Wind strengthening, especially near the coast where it will feel very cold. Minimum temperature -1 deg C (30 deg F).

Thursday:
Cold and windy on Thursday with blustery showers on coasts. Some sunny spells, especially inland, but often cloudier towards the coast, perhaps with the odd shower. Maximum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Conditions turning very unsettled Friday and Saturday with gales, rain or showers, these wintry at times especially on hills. Winds easing through Sunday, with showers dying out. Feeling cold.
